

CONFERENCE ON Adventist Identity

Being the Remnant: Adventist
Identity in History and Theology

Andrews University
October 13-16, 2022

Call for Papers

This conference will provide a foundation for a series of global conferences on the central elements of Adventist identity. Each conference will explore Adventist identity from multi-disciplinary and multi-cultural perspectives.

By this Call for Papers, we invite proposals from scholars of diverse disciplines and cultures for papers that examine key issues in Adventist identity from biblical, historical, and theological perspectives. Regardless of discipline, scholars should situate their subjects historically.

We encourage exploration of the following questions:

What is the heart of Adventist identity? What are its essential elements? How are core aspects perceived and understood in different parts of the world? What elements define the identity of any group (beliefs, praxis, shared history, worldview, etc.)? How do Adventists worldwide arrive at a shared identity? How is an identity lost? Can some aspects of Adventist identity vary? Does missional success require some adaptation of Adventist identity or only of how it is presented?

Proposals with abstracts of up to 500 words should be sent by September 1, 2021, to Dr. John Reeve, Church History Department, Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary, Andrews University: email proposals to both chis@andrews.edu and archives@gc.adventist.org

- DEADLINES:
1. Proposals for papers by September 15, 2021
 2. For those whose proposals are accepted:
full drafts of papers by April 15, 2022

Hosted by the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary at Andrews University
Sponsored by Biblical Research Institute; Ellen G. White Estate;
Office of Archives, Statistics, and Research

Office of
— Archives, Statistics, and Research

